

Intergenerational Writing Club

The National Literacy Agency is organising a writing club for parents/guardians of children aged between 8 and 12.

The aim of this club is to give the opportunity to two different generations to work together. It will also help them develop their creative writing skills, express their thoughts in writing and work together on writing projects.

An exhibition of work and a closure celebration will be organized at the end of the club. A certificate of completion will be given to all participants who attend regularly (80%) and complete the course successfully.
